

A winner thanks to Tamworth art industry survey

Barbara Sinclair of Tamworth has won a holiday by completing the Tamworth Visual Art Industry Survey.

By completing the survey early, Ms Sinclair was put in the draw for a weekend at Port Macquarie courtesy of Arts North West Regional Arts Board and the Northern Inland Regional Development Board.

The survey is an outcome of the Art as an Industry Symposium held in Tamworth in March.

The Art as an Industry Symposium brought together representatives from across the New England North West to explore new ways to foster the development of the region's art industry.

According to Jack Ritchie, Regional Arts Development Officer at Arts North West, the Visual Art Survey will provide a profile of the Tamworth area's art industry.

"This information will then be used to develop strategies to provide ongoing support to the industry's development locally."

Although the survey competition has been drawn, Mr Ritchie stresses that survey information is still being collected.

"To ensure we develop an accurate picture of the Tamworth area's visual art industry, it is still very important for artists, art teachers, students, galleries and other art industry representatives to complete the survey."
